Dan Shupe Victim Of Tuberculosis

Daniel K. Shupe of Monessen, died last night at 11:30 o'clock at the Cresson sanitarium where he went about four weeks ago for the treatment of pulmonary trouble.

Mr. Shupe was aged 27 years and was a son of David W. Shupe, of Greensburg, former county commissioner. He had been ill about seven months, but prior to his last illness, Mr. Shupe had been a robust young man.

Physicians advised a change of climate and Mr. Shupe went to Asheville, N. C., where he remained several weeks but without benefit, and he returned to Greensburg to the home of his parents and later went to Cresson.

But from the first there seemed to be no substantial improvement and though he made a heroic struggle for life and health, these blessings were not forthcoming and Mr. Shupe was called to rest last night at the above hour.

Before his illness Mr. Shupe was employed here at the Pittsburgh Steel mill and lived on Reed avenue. After taking sick he gave up his residence. He was well and favorably known to many Monessen people who will learn with the deepest sorrow of his death.

The parents, a widow and two children, aged five years and eight months respectively, survive. The body was brought to Greensburg from where the funeral will take place.

Sports Program Feature Of Picnic

Despite the fact that the Christian Sunday school picnic yesterday was shortened to a half day on account of the heavy rain in the morning, a large crowd was in attendance and a good time enjoyed in Lynn's grove by both old and young. Barrels of lemonade and many freezers of ice cream were disposed of in addition to the well filled baskets containing sandwiches, cakes and other picnic delicacies.

A feature of the afternoon was a baseball game between the married men and the single men, which was won by the latter and the tug of war between the men, boys and ladies.

The sports program was carried out as follows:

Aged Man Hit By Auto And Instantly Killed

If the driver of the automobile who run down and instantly killed John W. Scott is captured by the state police, he will not only be called upon to defend himself against a charge of murder but undoubtedly his license will be revoked by the State Highway department.

Scott was aged about 79 years and was walking along the state road between here and Webster last night at 8.15 when a speeding automobile came along, hit the man and knocked him down, breaking both of his legs, both of his arms and crushing his breast badly. John Roberts, a boy was near the place at the time and he claims that after the collision, the car was brought to a standstill and a passenger went to the spot where the man lay dead, then instantly started the machine and sped on.

Shortly after the man was killed. Conney Metz of Belle Vernon came along and saw the dead body and brought the news to town. W. S. Moore, the undertaker, then took charge of the remains and Deputy Coroner Howard W. Day was at once notified.

The boy who saw the tragedy claims that the car was being driven without lights and as additional evidence that the rate of speed was excessive, the old man's cane was found a distance of thirty feet from the body.

Mr. Scott of late had not been enjoying the best of health. He had been making his home with a daughter, Mrs. George Byers back of Belle Vernon, and it is supposed he was on his way home when hit by the machine.

The body will be taken to the Byers home from where the funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with interment in the Monongahela cemetery. Mrs. L. W. Shepler of McKee avenue and Miss Lila Byers of Monessen are granddaughters of the dead man. Every effort is being put forth to locate the driver of the car.

Porch Party Was A Pleasant Affair

In the absence of Mrs. Guy R. Eddy, who was called to Elizabeth by the illness of her mother, the Misses Helen and Elsie Stahlnecker entertained at a porch party at the Eddy home on McKee avenue yesterday afternoon. The affair was held as a benefit for the Baptist church and about seventy guests were present. A musical and literary program was a pleasant feature of the afternoon's entertainment. Piano solos were rendered by Mrs. C. H. Dils, Miss Clara Hart and Miss Edna Huggins, vocal solo by Miss Bessie Preston and several interesting readings by Mrs. Dan McMahan. Following the program the guests enjoyed the remainder of the afternoon at fancy work, and a dainty lunch was served.

Independent Play West Newton Here

This evening at the Page grounds the first twilight game of the season will be played when the West Newton ball team will cross bats with the local Independents. The game will be called at six o'clock and it is quite likely that a number of new faces will be seen in the Monessen lineup. Tomorrow the big game of the season will be played with the Beltzhoover team, champions of the Independent circuit. This game will start promptly at 3:45 and should attract one of the largest crowds of the season. Herrod, the former scholastic star, will probably twirl for the visitors and McCreight of Indiain or Jones of Scottdale for the Independents.

Good Speaker Here Sunday

George S. Kendall of Washington, a noted exegete of scriptural subjects and formerly of the New York Lecture Bureau, comes to our city and will speak at the Star theatre, Sunday, July 11th at 3 o'clock p. m., on the subject "This War in Prophecy."

The speaker is a very able Bible student, a fluent and forceful speaker, who has been heard in most of the leading cities of the United States and Canada.

Mr. Kendall has promised to unravel in a convincing manner the prophetic statements of the Bible which contain direct references to the present great crisis and fortell its final outcome.

The subject is most opportune, as not only Christians, but also non-church goers are wondering what will be the result of the present world conflict, and the speaker claims that the Bible holds the answer. He has a message of great interest both to Christians and honest skeptics.

A cordial invitation is extended to all. No admission charge of any kind and no collection will be lifted. 22-1t

Drunken Foreigner Drowned

John Honichak, aged 43 years of Shire Oaks, was drowned in the Monongahela river Monday near the mouth of Dry Run and his body recovered yesterday by Edward Mercer, a youth who saw the floater in the river and notified workmen who pulled the body from the river and took it to the Bebout and Yohe morgue.

The drowned man in company with Steve Lako were in Monongahela Monday celebrating and when they started for home, both were intoxicated. At New Eagle they became disorderly and Lako was arrested, but Honichak made his escape. It is thought that he wandered to the river and fell in while in his drunken condition. The body was seen floating on the river Wednesday but no alarm was given and the remains were not recovered until yesterday. The authorities are investigating the death as the pockets of the man's clothing were turned inside out and it is believed by some that he was a victim of foul play.

Teaches Children Habits

Did you know that Uncle Sam runs the northernmost school in the world? Can you guess where it is? Alaska, of course. Way up at the tip-top end of Alaska—the most northern point of land under the stars and stripes, is Point Barrow, washed by the icy waters of the Arctic ocean. And right at that point is the most northern school in the world, the United States public school of Barrow, Arctic Alaska.

Barrow is an Eskimo village. All the schoolboys and school girls who go to the little school house at Barrow are Eskimos. The only whites in the village are two or three men who have a traders post, and the school teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Telbert L. Richardson, who represent the authority of Uncle Sam and of the United States bureau of education, which is charged by law with the education of the natives of Alaska.

American school children who are now enjoying their vacation will be interested to know that Point Barrow school children learn many things not taught in the school houses in the states, as well as many that are taught. English, of course, is one of the principal studies, and the classes are advancing rapidly, so that now the number of reliable interpreters is constantly increasing.

Arithmetic, too, is given a prominent place in all the grades. The advanced classes are given practical problems in everyday life, such as the purchase of lumber, computing the cost and selling prices of different classes of goods used at Barrow, the cost of different methods of transportation, including wharfage, insurance and commission. In some of the lower grades, the Eskimo boys and girls figure out the cost of sending fox skins to Seattle by mail, as well as the value of bearskins, whalebone, ivory and other products which the natives ship to the states.

But the ordinary school work is only a part of the work of the native schools. Here the teacher must teach hygiene and sanitation, the evils of the use of liquor and tobacco. The boys at the school have built a blacksmith shop and in it is housed a wonderful blacksmith outfit—wonderful for Point Barrow. And this blacksmith shop is busy every moment, sometimes day and night in the season when the fathers are busy catching whales.

The girls learn sewing and housework of all kinds. And the teacher must be a jack-of-all-trades, a leader of the community, adviser, nurse and physician. He and his wife represent the authority of the government and are respected and looked up to accordingly. The average daily attendance at the Barrow school during the school season lasting from September to May, is 108 pupils. In the summer, however, the teachers are just as busy as in winter, going among the natives and trying to improve their living conditions.

Select Good Men

Don't become discouraged folks, there are better days coming. We will elect better men in the future than we have in the past to sit on our council and to direct the affairs of our government. Of course we are getting the largest heads that type will furnish through our exchanges about the "disappearance of two councilmen within three months" and a lot of other stuff that wouldn't need to be said, and some things that could be said that are hushed up to save the town from further disgrace. But all of this scandal, sensation and disgrace should come to us as a lesson. It should be part of expedience and should teach us that the town needs its best men for public office. It needs the brains of the community to sit at the council table, men who own property, men whose interests are here. If men are elected to public office who can pack their grip and skip from sunset to sunrise, we'll have a slip shod government. Our money will not be properly spent and our business will be transacted just like the affairs of the individual. We sometimes elect a ten cent man to serve a billion dollar corporation. But say, is it right? If a man made a big investment and sought a manager to look after it, there is not one chance in a hundred that he would pick up a man who had no interests anywhere. He would look for a substantial citizen of some community.

New Monessen people should resolve to select men to serve on council who by their life and business experience are commendable. Men who have made a success of their own affairs and who meet their obligations and are true to their homes and loyal to their town. It is possible to get such men and voters should use more and better judgment in the future than in the past, for the town is getting bigger every year and greater responsibility is necessary. With the announcement yesterday of W. A. McShaffrey will come three good men who will give a portion of their time and lend their talents to help us get a good substantial government. Let us hear from them.

Frederick's War on Coffee.

In a manifesto issued by Frederick the Great in 1779 the mighty monarch deplored "the increased consumption of coffee by my subjects and the amount of money that goes out of the country in consequence. Everybody is using coffee. This must no longer be. My subjects must drink beer. His majesty was brought up on beer, and so were his ancestors. Innumerable battles have been fought and won by soldiers nourished on beer, and the king does not believe that coffee drinking soldiers can be depended upon to endure hardships or to conquer his enemies should another war occur." Coffee roasting was made a government monopoly, and a prohibitive price was charged for the berry. "Coffee smellers" were appointed all over Prussia to check illicit roasting. Coffee was therefore ousted from popular favor.

Throwing Dirty Water.

An English legal periodical recently published an inquiry sent to it by a lawyer as to the origin of a queer belief encountered by him—that it is no offense to throw water on a person, provided the water be dirty. A client of his, summoned for assault, had assured him that he had a sufficient defense, because he had taken the precaution of putting a handful of dirt in the water before throwing it. Another correspondent suggested as the solution the ancient practice, before the days of drains and sewers, of throwing waste water into the street. When this practice was prevalent doubtless the fact that the water was dirty instead of clean was a circumstance tending to show that the wetting of the unfortunate passerby was a misadventure rather than by design.

The Discomfort of Dust

The advent of the automobile has made living in a great many communities almost INTOLERABLE.

A machine sweeps by your door and leaves in its wake a trail of dust that CHOKES and BLINDS you—that paints your flowers, your porch, your curtains, furniture, carpets and rugs with a coating of dirt.

YOUR HEALTH IS MENACED—YOUR PROPERTY DAMAGED!

You cannot enjoy the PLEASURES of your porch because it is not fit to sit on.

Your wife is CONSTANTLY WORKING to keep things CLEAN—the desire of every woman who takes a natural PRIDE in her home.

From the outside your house looks shabby and old. So does your neighbors'—practically the entire community.

How does this affect the chance visitor or the man looking for a new location?

Isn't it natural to suppose the first goes away and spreads the news that your town is NOT PROGRESSIVE? And the latter is unfavorably impressed and moves on to the next town whose citizens have appreciated the advantages of well-kept roads?

As a community you want to grow—to see your property improve in value—your merchants flourish—your taxes reduced.

You cannot accomplish these things if your roads are NEGLECTED.

And there is LESS REASON today for neglecting your roads than ever before.

Right at this moment The Atlantic Refining Company of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, is under contract with this State to oil or resurface with asphalt hundreds of miles of State roads.

With a big fleet of auto trucks and wagon distributors, they are operating in every county in the State. This makes it possible to take care of your roads IMMEDIATELY, to make prompt deliveries of material, put it on the roads—in fact, handle the whole job in the most ECONOMIC manner for you.

One of the Atlantic road experts is now at work with the County Engineer. He will be glad to meet with you and CO-OPERATE to make your roads what they should be. He can furnish you accurate figures on the cost of any part or all of the work—he will ASSIST you in arousing interest and devising ways and means to finance the project.

Get in touch with this man.

This means YOU!

shelf-emptying

Shelf-Emptying is now in progress—a time when we clear out all the surplus unmindful of the cost or former selling price—by putting a price on everything that will make each individual article sell on sight to the first one who sees it—that's the way we quickly rid our stock of odd lots and surplus—there's a great big value-giving surprise in every department this year—for we are great believers in taking a loss—a big loss and let that loss end it by selling the merchandise picked out to sell, in half the time it would take to sell it at a higher price. Those who know this semi-annual shelf-emptying sale will appreciate the importance of this event.

SEEK PARDON FOR LIFE PRISONERS—SERVED 10 YEARS

Minneapolis, Minn., July 9—The State Pardon board will today give a hearing on the evidence claimed by friends of three men who are serving life terms for murder, to decide on the application for pardon entered in behalf of John Kolb, Charles Hommond and Orlin Kalderwit. The three men have served time for ten years for a murder which their friends claim they did not commit. The murder took place on Thanksgiving eve, 1904, and the victim was Frederick King, a young man, who was with his father in a saloon during a turkey raffle. Three men entered the door and began shooting up the place. The bullet which hit the boy was believed to have been intended for the bar tender. Kolb Hammond and Kalderwit were arrested and given life terms. Recently a witness came forward who stated that he heard three men in a conversation on the night of the shooting, and heard them tell of shooting a boy. A woman who knew the three men and whose story, their friends assert, will clear them, may appear today. Hitherto she has not told what she knew because her husband had feared the notoriety, it is said.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

The BROKEN COIN by EMERSON HOUGH

From the Scenario by GRACE CUNARD

COPYRIGHT, 1915, BY WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

FIRST INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER I.

The Cryptic Coin.

Kitty Gray, crack reporter on the Evening Star, pulled out of her typewriter the last sheet of paper and piled it on the little heap of finished copy which lay at her right. Then she closed her desk, stepped to the wardrobe and took her coat and hat.

Taking her little collection of copy paper from the desk, with the privilege of long tenure in office she walked to the desk of the city editor, who, although himself a married man, had all this time without success tried to look at the work before him and not at the trim figure of Kitty Gray making ready for her luncheon journey.

"When will you deign to return?" asked he with a certain lapse in journalistic dignity.

"When I have a better story than this guff—in the vernacular."

Kitty's favorite lunching place was in one of the great department stores, where women were made welcome and comfortable, and she bent thither her steps; but midway in her journey she paused, as often she did, to gaze into the window of the little antique shop which occupied space in one of the unimportant side streets.

Kitty Gray's eyes were arrested by something that she saw—an object which she did not recall ever before to have noted in the window. It lay close to the glass, just tilted back so that it might be the better seen. It apparently was an old coin or part of one, curiously done in some dark metal, probably silver badly oxidized.

As Kitty bent down to examine it more closely, she saw that the coin bore an inscription, or what appeared to be such—an inscription broken across by the fracture which had divided the coin itself.

Her curiosity excited, Kitty Gray stepped into the little shop, whose proprietor she knew very well.

"Good morning, Mr. Mainz," she said with the customary newspaper inversion of the order of the day, "how's business? Any new fans, idols, coins—?"

"Coins? Vot? Sure, I got something new dot is olt. I choost t'ink of him. He iss only a part of himselluf. Should I show him to you?"

"Oh, maybe I saw it in the window," said Kitty, simling. "You mean the broken coin?"

"Sure. Vait till I got him."

She took up the coin now from the case, and some strange sort of thrill came over her as she did so, she could not tell why. What was its message, halting, broken, incomplete? Did it hold a story? What was the story?

"It's odd, isn't it?" said she, and laid it down again carelessly—with a carelessness well feigned, for Kitty Gray had bought antiques before now, and knew well enough when to suppress interest.

"Odt? I should say it vas odt," rejoined the old dealer. Kitty had picked up an inlaid mother of pearl fan and was studiously examining that now.

"How much?" asked she, holding up the fan.

"For the broken coin?"

"No, the fan."

"I vant twelf tollar for him."

"For the coin?"

"No, for the fan. For the coin—vat you gif me?"

"Why, what earthly use would I have for a broken piece of metal like that, Mr. Mainz?"

"Gif me for the fan eleven dollar, und I make you a present of the broken coin anyway."

Kitty Gray's heart gave a sudden little jump. She would have given twice eleven dollars for the coin itself, but she made a good pretense.

"Eleven dollars is a good deal of money," said she. "I would have to go without lunch for quite a while."

"You are a goot sport, Miss Cray," said the old dealer. "I dank you very mooch. I should wrap them up?"

"The fan—yes. Let me see the coin again." She pushed across the counter almost the last of the tightly folded bills in her purse.

"Read the inscription for me, and I knock off two dollars from the fan," said Mainz. "Vot is it? It is not Cherman, it is not Franzoesisch, it is not English. I am all those. But I could not read him."

Kitty held before her the curious object, a slight frown puckering her brows.

"Well, you see," said she, "it is broken right across on the right hand side—almost a third of the writing is gone. It says something about looking for something under the floor, under the pavement of some place of torture or torment."

"Und not next?"

"Thesaur'—that word's broken across, but it must mean 'thesaurus'—that means 'a collection'—a 'collection of values,' don't you know?

"The next line is one word; it's all there—'Rex,'" she went on. "That's plain. 'Rex'—'regis'—it means king's or 'of the king.' 'The king's treasures'—what?

"I'm down to the last words now. It is curious—a proper name. It is only the Latin name of the kingdom of Gretzhoffen! That's a little bankrupt kingdom over in southern Europe, near the Mediterranean. I know about it—I did a story about it once, the time the kingdom was trying to float a loan in this country. I had to read up a whole lot."

"I bet you could did it, Miss Cray," said Mainz, admiringly. "Vell, goot-by. Come again und tell me vot you find out, like a goot girl."

"Sure," said Kitty, and turned to leave, her coin clutched tightly in her hand. So intent was she on her purchase that she did not notice she had dropped the package containing the shell-ribbed fan. Vaguely missing something as she emerged into the open air, she turned back, and almost ran into a man who had passed her as she came out. He was a foreign-looking individual, dark of hair and eyes and skin, strongly built, a figure such as one would note. He bowed now courteously enough as he handed her the package she had let fall. Kitty thanked him and hurried on her way. This stranger entered the shop and spoke in some foreign tongue to the old dealer, who shook his head.

"No," said he, answering in English. "I choost sold it—to dot young lady who vent out."

"Who is she? I know her very well. She is on der papers. Better look out or she put you in der paper sure. Miss Kitty Gray vos an oldt frent of mine. She read like a book vot vos on the coin. Vy didn't you telephone—maybe she sell it back to you—I don't know. She wouldn't sold it back to me. I know dot. Vot! you are going?"

CHAPTER II.

The Big Assignment.

Kitty Gray did not go to her usual place for luncheon that day. Instead she hurried into a nearby delicatessen shop and bought a sandwich, which she put in her handbag. After this she hurried on back to the office. Arrived there, without ceremony she went again to the desk of the city editor, and silently laid down before him her empty purse, her antique fan, her sandwich and her broken coin.

Cutler looked up with professional calm.

"Yes, Miss Gray? Why all this orderly array of fresh and interesting objects?"

"That is my story," said she.

"What makes you think so? Are you seeing things, Miss Gray?"

"Look here."

Kitty picked up the coin and showed it to him.

"See, it is broken quite across—more than a third of it gone. The inscription is Latin. It is not so much what is on the coin—it is what is off of it. Perhaps it commemorates something."

"Commemorates what, Miss Gray?"

"Precisely—what? That's the story!"

"By Jove!" Cutler was studying at the inscription. "'Sub' means 'under'—what does it say?—under the bamboo tree?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"'Underneath the flagstone' or 'pavement' or 'floor'—'in the angle' or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—'there will be found treasures'—'of the king' 'of —'"

"—'Of Gretzhoffen!'" concluded Kitty Gray. "You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutler? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out. There'd be an assignment, wouldn't there? I'd rather do that than society in the summer time."

Billy Cutler, time-tried news man, grown thin and grim and gray in the business, sat for just one moment in thought. "Wait a minute, please," said he at length, and rose to leave the room.

Kitty did wait anxiously enough, for what reason she could not tell. She sat at her own desk, the mysterious broken coin tight clutched in her hand. It seemed an hour before she saw the slender form of the city editor returning from the door which led to the office of the manager and publisher of the Evening Star. He looked at her thoughtfully as he approached.

He held out a check.

"Three thousand dollars!" Kitty Gray's eyes grew larger.

"Expense money. Three months' vacation. Full powers as missionary plenipotentiary of the Evening Star to Gretzhoffen, ambassadress to any old place you happen to think of, Miss Gray. I never knew the old man to go off his head before, but he has this time."

* * * * * * *

Further at her heart the small feeling that she was leaving her usual modest and safe line of life to adventure upon something perhaps fateful—perhaps indeed fatal—Kitty Gray, sober faced, turned from the door of the Evening Star and walked slowly toward the corner where customarily she took her car for home.

She entered her apartment, cast one glance about the first little room, and then paused.

The rug in the hall was turned over at one corner—was it by accident? The pictures all hung on the walls, yet several were askew, and—the little wall-safe back of one of the pictures—which had held some small objects of little value, an old daguerreotype or two, some silver spoons, a few gold pieces which she had cherished—had been broken open. Its contents now lay upon the floor. Amazed, Kitty stooped and picked them up, one by one. Nothing was missing—even the gold coins were there. Nothing had been harmed. But who had done this, and why?"

Peoples Forum

This column is devoted to the expression of the opinion of our readers and in no wise denotes the paper's opinion on or sympathy with any question involved.

At the request of members of the Greek Catholic church, the following article explanatory of the teaching of the church doctrines is published. It is reproduced from the Slavish Union, a newspaper of wide circulation in the Slavish language published at Homestead.

In the 20th century of progress we find this world as one large book, and if one can use good judgment and common sense, this large book can be opened and read through, but even if given an opportunity, many of our people are still ignorant of facts, which could prove of great importance at the present time.

Many of us have dwelt in America for 25 years, but that has not helped us in any way. Many of these foreigners, not only cannot be understood by American people, but do not know anything of themselves. They do not know who they are and if one should question them about their nationality or religion, they will hesitate, for they do not know, but regardless of this fact, they worship and go to church and when summoned before a magistrate in court, they falter and cannot account for their religion. They claim they are what they are told to be, by ones who are much wiser than they and use them as their playthings.

Let us imagine ourselves in the city which we first saw and where we landed when arriving in this free land, America—New York. Then leave New York and travel over the whole of America and finally land in Canada. During that trip, if we observed well, what did we see? Almost in every town, small or large, we saw many churches, among them churches with a cross. If you should inquire of either an American or foreign person the denomination of that church you would be told, "Greek Catholic church," which would be perfectly right, for the church has been named thus since the days of Christ. But when one of the congregation is asked his nationality, he certainly shows his ignorance should he reply that he is a "Greek." Although the church bears the name "Greek" it has no relationship whatever with the "Greeks" of Greece. The name was first given the church when Greek men translated the Greek alphabet into the Russian language and thus used the word Slavish Greek Catholic in the church books, after which the churches were also named.

For over twenty five years we have been subjected to criticism and made fun of because our pastors in place of enlightening us, were blinding us, and we knew nothing of ourselves. Not only in Monessen and other towns have American people been amused at our seeming ignorance, it all over America, people have suffered embarrassment when they were asked about themselves as to their religion and nationality, for our pastors misled them and instead of teaching them the original truth, they taught them their own invented lies. Following is an interesting example.

One of our Russian men was called before the court as an interpreter. As the Russian approached him, the judge asked him if he was a Greek, which the former admitted, whereupon the judge addressed him.

"Talk to the Greek and ask him what he wants and where he wishes to go, for we cannot understand him."

The Russian interpreter went up to the Greek and commenced talking to him, but the Greek stared at the interpreter and said something which sounded strange to him. The interpreter was then asked what the Greek had to say but he announced that he did not understand the Greek.

"Why can't you understand him if both you and he are Greeks," the interpreter was asked.

"There must be some mistake," replied the latter. Whose fault is it that the Russian claimed he was a Greek when he wasn't? He belonged to a church where the pastors had taught them that they were Greeks and he allowed himself to be mislead. We have thus been mislead for 25 years and it is now time that we open our eyes to the truth and be aware of what we are.

Another good example can be taken from the 13th annual convention of the Slavish Greek Catholic lodge held at Scranton last summer. In many places where it was necessary, the words "Greek Catholic Convention" were seen . The Slavish newspapers in describing the convention, told of the thousands of Greeks who were in attendance from other towns as well as from Scranton.

Approaching a Greek shoe shine, a Slavish man was asked by the Greek if he could explain to him what was meant by the banners and other notices reading "Greek Catholic Convention." For, he said, there were just about a dozen Greeks in Scranton and he was puzzled. This Greek knew there was something wrong, some mistake, but all the prominent Slavish delegates who were in attendance at the convention, knew no better. They were taught to believe thus, by ones who knew no better themselves, and if they know better, they make no effort to enlighten their charges. So who is to blame? Our leaders make a practice of teaching us, but always living in a fear that we might learn something. So the poor blinded people allow themselves to be misled thus. But some day these people who are responsible for this condition will be called upon to give an account of themselves.

Following is another example dealing with the above subject. A visiter goes in to a Russian-American school and asks the first smart looking child he sees what he is and the child replies "Rusin" (meaning Russian) and then he asks that same child in the American language what he is and he replies "Greek." Are our teachers endeavoring to show us any different?

Our preachers are all known as Hungarians. In the eyes of the Russian people, he is known as a Russian priest, in the American language he is known as a Greek and in private life, Hungarian.

In a certain town the priest of a Russian Catholic church had a photograph taken of his church and had the following printed beneath the picture. "Hungarian Greek Catholic church." The congregation did not consist of one Hungarian person, all were Russian and still this priest took the liberty of naming the church as he liked regardless of whether it was such or not.

Looking at notices which refer to our schools, lodges and other institutions, we read in our language. Russian, Greek Catholic church, schools, lodges, etc., and if the request was made to read same in the American language we would say "Greek Catholic church, schools, lodges, etc. Where does the word Russian disappear? Is it such a word that we should be ashamed of?

So, isn't it time that we should change this situation, that we might show the people and let them know who we are?

EXCURSION TOMORROW

Great plans have been made for the excursion to be given tomorrow on the steamer Sunshine by the Isabelle Thoburn class of the M. E. church. As it is likely this will be the only excursion from Monessen this summer, everyone should take advantage of it. The scenery along the upper Monongahela river is most beautiful and what could be more pleasant than a whole day on the river? The Sunday schools and churches of all denominations from Monessen and surrounding towns have been invited and a nice crowd is anticipated. Baskets may be taken if you wish but abundant lunch has been provided for ones who do not care to take baskets. As Saturday has been chosen so many of the mill men could go, the boat will not leave here until 10 a. m., thus giving the men a chance to get their pay first. The fare for round trip for adults is 50 cents. Children between the ages of 8 and 14 years 25 cents.

Tickets may be bought of any member of the class or at the office of the Friday Evening Call, Donner avenue.

The class wants anyone not belonging to the various churches to feel that they are cordially welcome to go.

The Primary department of the Methodist Sunday school will be taken free and the Sunday school will pay for all Methodist Junior Department children who go. 1t

Quite a little excitement was caused in Monongahela yesterday when a number of small boys playing near the river at Fourth street found the foot of a child floating in the river. They notified the authorities, who after an investigation, discovered that the foot belonged to a child that had been killed near Monongahela some time ago. The foot had been left by the undertaker in a stable and was later thrown into the river by persons who were troubled with the odor arising from the decayed flesh.
